

Wild Salmon, Food Security, and Climate Connections

Sat. May 7, 3:00 p.m.

Britannia Library
1661 Napier St.

Admission is free. Seating is limited.

Eddie Gardner will tell the story of the Wild Salmon Caravan focusing on wild salmon as a food staple for indigenous people, and what it means to First Nation's physical, spiritual, and cultural well-being. The presentation and slide show will touch on First Nation's salmon ceremonies and songs that honour this most revered gift, this relative of ours.

Eddie Gardner (T'it'elem Spath), Skwah First Nation band member, is the Wild Salmon Defenders Alliance Coordinator, and is devoted to collective efforts to prevent wild salmon from going extinct due to industrial harm.
