

The GrassRoots Project: Celebrating Britannia Spirit

The Britannia Centre is looking for nominations of individuals who are or have lived, worked or played in Grandview-Woodland & Strathcona and who represent the values and character (uniqueness, community-mindedness, creativity, generosity...) of the Britannia neighbourhood.

Britannia is working with Artist, Pierre Leichner, to create portraits of our selected Britannia Spirits. Portraits will be made from wheatgrass grown from a mould of the face.

This project will honour up to 12 community citizens of all ages and all walks of life, known for their grassroots activities. This will be done using an artistic medium that draws attention to the environmental issues facing our community. Artistic expression is connected to these issues making this work accessible to a general public of all ages and engaging on many levels including biological, personal, communal & spiritual.
