

IN THE LIBRARY:

1. Claire Brown—Still a Daisy at Heart
I've been really inspired by daisies recently, incorporating them into films and songs that I write. Daisies are such sweet flowers representing innocence, childhood and maybe even young love. In the midst of my grade 12 year, I'm feeling nervous about leaving my youth and entering adulthood. I'm grasping tiny bits of my childhood that I don't want to let go of.

2. Elsa & Kata—Reality vs Expectations
Sometimes you expect to get one thing but it turns into something else. Flowers in the winter are unexpected.

3. Helen Spaxman—Seaweed & Coral
Blooming under the sea. Repurposed banners are my specialty. When there are pale banners that aren't sold at Artful Sunday (August events in Napier Greenway) repainting/adding to them seem the logical response and the result is less waste and more beauty.

4. Helen Spaxman—Bees & Flowers
Another repurposed banner. Bringing some more pattern and bright texture to this one that was part of a "Friend" themed workshop 10 years ago.

5. Helen Spaxman & Claire Brown
Galaxies (Fall 2018 theme Intergalactic)

6. Helen Spaxman & Patricia Darling
Nebula (Fall 2018 theme Intergalactic)
