Join us for this very special 25th anniversary Stone Soup Festival, where we will celebrate the many achievements of Stone Soup in creating a vibrant and rich local food system in our community. From its earliest years a quarter century ago, the Stone Soup Festival strove to build awareness in our community on the issues of food security, food justice, and the benefits of sharing resources and eating sustainably. At its heart, Stone Soup has always been about celebrating our love of food and its importance to the culture and well-being of our community.

This year's theme of Gratitude for Land and Place acknowledges that we are all living on the unceded traditional territories of the Musqueam, Squamish, and Tsleil-Waututh peoples. As people living here now, we have a responsibility to take care of the lands, the waters, the plants, and the animals that depend on a healthy environment. We also acknowledge that food can most directly connect us to the land and to place, especially if we are sourcing our food locally. We are grateful for a healthy environment and healthy food on these lands.

In the spirit of gratitude and celebration, we welcome all community members, young and old, community groups, artists, vendors and all to participate by bringing your energy and ideas for what gratitude on this land means to you. Join us and make this special 25th anniversary Stone Soup Festival the most memorable ever.
